

Cannabis Industry Research Intern

The Aubrey Group – Camden, NJ (Hybrid)

Summer 2024 Internship Description

The Aubrey Group is seeking a Cannabis Industry Research Intern. This post is an excellent fit for young professionals looking to increase their understanding of state and local regulations, municipal government, and have an interest in policy, and strong writing skills. We are seeking candidates who are passionate about the impact that thoughtfully designed strategic planning can have in the emerging cannabis industry, and who share in our values of kindness, curiosity and diligence.

Internship Responsibilities

- Similar to our Research Analysts, interns will report to AG Project Manager to assist with preparing highly professional license application content including business plans, community impact and workforce development narratives, budgets, standard operating procedures etc.
- Interns will work with Project Managers to coordinate timely application preparation and submission.
- Along with RAs, interns will attend monthly Cannabis Regulatory Commission Meetings and summarize updates for internal use.
- As directed by a Project Manager, interns will research and summarize federal, state, and local public policy, regulations, practices, and programs, including legislative initiatives and state and local cannabis regulations and ordinances.
- Interns will assist in preparing client-facing summaries of policy updates and related regulatory information.
- Interns will also perform clerical work where necessary such as data entry and collection.
- Interns can assist with quality control and copy editing on content prepared by our team of writers.
- Interns will have the opportunity to participate in client meetings and attend various events that include external consultants (lawyers, security professionals, marketing experts, architects etc.) and partners (local government, economic development, organized labor etc.).
